What is the IBP Network?

- With over 80 member organizations representing international non-governmental organizations (NGOs), local civil society organizations (CSOs), academia, and others, the IBP Network convenes partners to share best practices, experiences and tools to support family planning and reproductive health programming. Activities focus on supporting knowledge exchange, documentation, and implementation research efforts.
- The mission of IBP Network is to support dissemination and use of evidence-based guidelines and programmatic interventions in FP/SRH, through IBP's convening power, diverse membership and neutral platform for knowledge sharing and collaboration.
- This platform will allow for higher engagement, more frequent dissemination of information, and will serve as a catalog of PPH CoP materials, including slides and presentations from annual meetings.
